BANK AND FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT, MONEY AND FINANCE

'Rule No. 1: Never lose money. Rule No. 2: Never forget rule No. 1.' — Warren Buffett

The double-degree programme includes spending one year in the master programme of the partner university and leads to a double master degree, from both the home university (UL) and the foreign partner university. When students complete the studies they are awarded a double master degree: one from their own university and one from the foreign university. Given the high quality of the partner universities' master programmes, this is an excellent entry point for ambitious students to the international job market or an academic career.

STUDENTS CAN ENROLL IN A DOUBLE-DEGREE MASTER PROGRAMME IN:

BANK AND FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT

- BI Oslo
- ESSCA, Angers

The programme qualifies students to perform a wide array of tasks related to financial management in enterprises, banks, insurance companies and other financial institutions as well as to work in financial markets and in the non-profit and public sectors.

Students gain extensive knowledge about the operation of financial markets, financial risk management, as well as investment and equity management and are capable of making a financial analysis, valuing a company, adopting financial decisions in companies etc.

Graduates of this programme will be able to find employment in positions related to financial functions in companies, a variety of positions in financial institutions such as banks and insurance companies as well as in non-profit organisations and regulatory institutions (e.g. central bank, banking and insurance supervisory institutions).

MONEY AND FINANCE

- BI Oslo
- University of Siena

The programme gives the student a solid background knowledge of economics and quantitative tools. The growing complexity of financial markets in a globalized world is making such a knowledge a necessity for good analytical skills. Equipped with it our students will be given the opportunity to master its use in a selection of applied courses that will be offered each year. In addition to topical subjects related to monetary policy, investments, as well as public and international finance, the programme gives students knowledge about analytical tools and theoretical models.

Employment is possible in companies and institutions requiring a financial economist in the general government sector (ministries, agencies, central bank) and private companies dealing in money and finances.
