TRANSFER OF KNOWLEDGE INTO BUSINESS PRACTICE

Tourism is one of the fastest growing activities. Today, the number of journeys reached the number of world population of about seven billion people. Travelling generates one-tenth of the world's gross domestic product, while the development of tourism also brings social, cultural and environmental benefits. The expansion of tourism offers business opportunities to countries, regions, local communities and entrepreneurs as well as the public and non-governmental sectors. Travelling has become an element of lifestyle and quality of life. In a narrow sense, tourism encompasses work in hotels, bars and restaurants, tourist agencies, airlines, congress offices, entertainment parks, destination organisations, governmental and municipal offices etc. In a broader sense however, tourism also includes other tourism-related work in banks, insurance companies, shops, promotion agencies, the construction industry and traffic sector

Enrolling in the second-level programme Tourism is the right choice for those who are aware of the business opportunities this industry offers.
